Erik joined Schjødt in 2016 and is affiliated with the firm's Banking and Finance department. He primarily works with ship financing and financing of other maritime activities.

Erik has experience with drafting and negotiating both bilateral and syndicated loan agreements (including export credit financing) and is frequently involved in cross-border transactions. In addition to his experience from Schjødt, he was a legal secondee in DNB Bank ASA for one and a half year. In that capacity, Erik advised on, inter alia, structuring of loans in the maritime sector, drafting and negotiation of loan- and security documentation, debt refinancing and restructurings, as well as financings involving several different export credit institutions.

Erik holds two master degrees in law, from the University of Bergen and the University of Lancaster respectively. At the latter university he specialized in international trade and company law.
